EXCERPTS FROM A LETTER WRITTEN TO OUR PRESIDENT IN NOV., AFTER 1961 ANNUAL MEETING

Dear Dr. Mace:

"....We are still profiting from the (NCFR) conference (in Salt Lake City). The amount of continuing comment and the chain reaction into many related fields is gratifying to observe, and gives us satisfactions in which we wish you to share. We have had so much favorable comment about the practical ideas for community action that I want to acknowledge the far-reaching stimulation that came from the NCFR being with us in Utah.....

.....The goal of helping to awaken civic action is being realized. Provo has been nominated as one of the finalist cities to compete for the ALL AMERICAN AWARD in Florida in December (which is based on citizen participation in areas of social need).

Dr. Charles Taylor who introduced our Aging panel has been granted a leave of absence from Brigham Young Univ. to become Executive Director of the State Committee on Aging, and he has chosen the Provo group to do a pilot study (through the Dept. of HEW) with our Senior Citizens. Dr. LaMar Empey (who did the part of our program on Delinquency) has been appointed to the Provo School Board. Our Superintendent saw him in action at the conference and realized his great potential as a civic leader. The Committee on Upgrading Movies has been invited to numerous places in Utah to speak and share their techniques of approving movies. Utah County managers of theaters have requested that our PTA Committee meet with them to find out how they can get their movies announced and publicized as approved by this influential group. One manager brings special and approved Saturday children's movies apart from his regular billed evening program. A student body in Ogden has petitioned their city government to help them clean up their movies.

Our City Council has voted to accept a $100,000 gift from a prominent Provo couple to build a center for Senior Citizens...I was made chairman of a board of 21. We will need to apply all up-to-date wisdom to make this serve us best as we fit this into the total family pattern of a community.

Since motivating civic action and sharing of a variety of ideas was our goal, I hope you can feel with me that time was well spent. Regarding your work with us last January, I can feel an awakening interest in working on the problem of early teen-age marriage. We have an increased number of study groups and conferences for this winter.

Thank you for the stimulation you have given all of us. It was a great honor and privilege to work with you in this event. Come back to Utah often.

Sincerely,

Stella H. Oaks
Chairman, 1961 NCFR Community Section
Assistant Mayor of Provo, Utah

DON'T MISS THIS FINE RUSSIAN FAMILY FILM!

When we were in Soviet Union in 1960, we saw several films that focused on Russian family life. The one we liked the best, and got really excited about, was called "Seriozhe". It is a sensitive interpretation of the adjustments of a little boy to his new father when his widowed mother remarries.

I was so excited about this film that I tried to make arrangements to fit it into the program of a NCFR meeting or of the Groves Conference last year, but this didn't work out. Imagine my delight to discover that this movie has now been taken over commercially, and is showing throughout the nation under the title "A Summer to Remember". I very strongly urge all NCFR members to see it when it is in their locality, and to invite the managers of their local movie theatres to get it if it doesn't otherwise appear.

The theme of the conference will be the responsibilities of parents and educators in preparing modern youth for their future responsibilities, and particularly in the preparation of the girl to be a good wife and mother in the modern world. There will be a good deal of emphasis on vocational guidance, and on the education of girls.

The next session of the Commission on Marriage Guidance of the IUFO will take place in Tours, France June 14-17, 1962. The topics will be The Middle Years of Marriage, and The Characteristics of an Efficient Service of Marriage Guidance.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM WORLD CONGRESS ON MENTAL HEALTH IN PARIS, SEPTEMBER, 1961

There were two major themes at the World Congress on Mental Health in Paris, September, 1961, receiving equal emphasis.

The first was intensive consideration of conditions which make for a fear-free world, with reduction of armaments and war threats leading to reduction in human tensions. The second was consideration of principles involved in wholesome personal growth.

Dr. Brock Chisholm of Canada, formerly Director of the WHO, presided at a meeting where Mr. Noel Baker, Member of Parliament, who recently received the Nobel Peace Prize, and our own Dr. Jerome Frank, Professor of Psychiatry at Johns Hopkins Univ., discussed the psychological causes of war and emphasized the responsibility of every citizen in guiding public affairs. As Mr. Baker observed, "The world situation is much too dangerous to leave it to the politicians, a startling statement coming from one of the world's leading politicians! He said that one 50 megaton bomb could wipe out New York, and everyone within a forty mile radius would be blinded by a flash one 1000 times brighter than the sun. He emphasized that though we are still "arming for defense" there is no defense against an atomic bomb. Nor would shelters provide adequate protection since the fires resulting from the bomb explosion would use up all of the oxygen within a forty mile radius for a time sufficiently long to suffocate all in the area, as there would be no air to be filtered into the shelters. Both emphasized that is the duty of every responsible citizen to send a constant stream of telegrams and letters to their national leaders, to keep urging complete disarmament as the only real defense against the bomb.

Mrs. Fister of the UN staff said in jest that perhaps we need a Planetary League based on wisdom and cooperation so that we could, if need be, flee for survival to a safer and saner planet, without too great homesickness for our own Mother Planet!

As the climax of this session, the following poem by a Dutch poet, Pietr Hein, quoted by Dr. Magnussen evoked a rousing round of applause:

"The noble art of losing face
May sometime save the human race
And turn into eternal grace
What weaker minds would call disgrace."

Drs. Margaret Meade, Hans Hoff of Vienna, Ramon Sarro of Barcelona, Serge Libovici of Paris, Otto Klineberg of Columbia and Ben Morris of the Univ. of Manchester, England contributed to the sessions devoted to wholesome personal development. The following points were brought out: General mental health means more than lack of neuroses or psychoses. It consists of robust well-being in all the areas of personality, physical, mental, social, intellectual, spiritual. All of us still have a little of the child deep within the mature part. While this child part at times makes for regression, it also makes possible our continuing growth. The forces making for growth start at birth and last as long as life itself. It was observed further that in all educational and mental health activities the self is our main instrument and that we must therefore work at improving ourselves continually. Also an important aspect of maturity is recognition of our own strengths and weaknesses, with tolerance for the weaker parts leading to deeper understanding of the problems of others in terms of their strengths and weaknesses. We must realize always that we cannot do things for people, only with them.
