COME TO NCFR'S TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY!

The National Council on Family Relations will be celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary as the University of Denver begins the celebration of its one-hundredth anniversary. Thursday afternoon, August 22, has been set aside by the program committee for the delegates to go sightseeing in and around Denver. The Mile High City's sightseeing opportunities are practically endless. Drives of a few hours duration can take you to many historic spots in and near the city.

Two trips have been planned definitely: One will be to the Air Force Academy near Colorado Springs. Another will be the tour of Red Rocks Park, Lookout Mountain, and Central City. The natural sandstone amphitheatre in Red Rocks Park, seating 10,000, has been the setting for concerts starring well-known personalities in the entertainment world. Central City, once known as "the richest square mile on earth" welcomes visitors each summer to its century old opera house for the annual opera and play festival which features stars of the theatrical world.

Make your plans now to attend the annual conference and enjoy the climate of cool, colorful Colorado.

ESTABLISHMENT OF THE HUDSON FOUNDATION

All NCFR members who know John W. Hudson have admired the courage and determination with which he has, despite total blindness, established and maintained a position of universal respect as a leader in our marriage and family field. His contributions to conferences, and his participation in professional discussions, have always been informed and stimulating.

Our heartfelt sympathy went out to John and Dottie Hudson last year when, after a courageous battle to save his life, their son, Jimmy Lee died of leukemia in June, 1962. It seemed a particularly poignant tragedy, because this little family had already suffered much.

It is perhaps typical of our friends that they have tried to respond positively to their family tragedy by establishing The Hudson Foundation. This is a non-profit foundation set up to provide funds to support independent research and to off-set the cost of experimental treatment of cancer. All money donated is to be used entirely for equipment and laboratory facilities for cancer research, with particular emphasis on leukemia. No funds will be used to pay administrative costs, as all such services are being given voluntarily.

If any NCFR member would like to contribute to this fund, any gift, large or small, would be welcome. It should be sent to Mr. David L. Brennan, 1650 West Market Street, Akron 13, Ohio, an attorney who is handling the administrative side of the Foundation. Contributions from NCFR members will be personally acknowledged by John and Dottie Hudson.

THE FAMILY AS AN ELEMENT IN THE WORLD REVOLUTION, Dr. William J. Goode, Professor of Sociology, Columbia University: In this booklet Dr. Goode takes issue with the view that the family is a passive system in the social structure and instead suggests that it plays a very active role, having an important part in determining the nature of social change. He cites differences in family structure in China and Japan which were crucial factors in the different responses of these countries to Western influence. Dr. Goode also points out significant changes which are occurring in the family within societies now undergoing rapid transformation and traces the relations of these changes to the other social and economic changes taking place.
