THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON FAMILY RELATIONS

OSBORNE TEACHING AWARD

In memory of the late Ernest G. Osborne, the National Council on Family Relations establishes an Osborne Teaching Award. Bi-annually a $500 award is to be given to an individual in recognition of his demonstrated excellence in the teaching of family relationships.

Any individual may make nominations to the Award Committee by completing the form provided. (Nominations are not to be self-initiated.)

Policy

1. Teaching is to be interpreted as inclusive of educational programs in religious organizations, Adult Education, Extension, free-lancing, as well as instruction in elementary and secondary schools, colleges and universities.
2. The "teaching of family relationships" shall be defined rather specifically as "education about and for improvement in interpersonal interaction between or among family members." It should be distinguished from broader or more explicit instruction which may be of value in family relationships but does not have relationships within the family as its principal focus (examples of the latter: family finance, health education, personal development, etc.).

Criteria for Nomination

1. Demonstrated excellence in the teaching of family relationships. (Documentation will be necessary.)
2. Currently engaged in and probable active future role in the teaching of family relationships.
3. Excellence in learner-teacher relationships, including the qualities of empathy, acceptance of the individual, and active concern for the learner's total growth and development.
4. Willingness to promote dissemination of knowledge about improved teaching of family relationships through presenting a paper at an NCFR meeting and/or seeking publication of such in the JOURNAL.
