EXCITING PLANS FOR ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The 1971 Annual Conference, Estes Park, August 25-28, is being given form and content by the five Section chairmen and others who contribute significantly to what goes on at such a conference. With the change of format from large listen sessions to small get-in-there-and-pitch groups, each of the five Sections is planning about thirty different sessions. This means that when you register, you will be able to select one from twenty-five or more offerings for each of the program periods! With as tempting a program as is in the offing, we'll all have to fight off seizures of choice neuroses and get registration requests in early in order to get our first-choice sessions. Conference registration forms, including those for Section Meetings, will be sent you in May. The housing reservation form included with this Newsletter is to be returned directly to Colorado, not to the NCFR office.

The Annual Meeting will have its official opening with dinner and a Presidential Session, Wednesday, August 25 at 6:00 p.m. However, pre-conference meetings will begin at noon and will provide for special groups who want to get together ahead of the meeting. A luncheon meeting at noon, Saturday, August 28 will close the conference and leave you with a short weekend on hand in the Rockies.

Each group will be developed either around a topic or a person or group of people; for example, the Research Section under the chairmanship of Richard Udry will offer the following topics: Dyad Formation Processes, Variant Marriage Forms, Methodological Problems in Sex Research, The Family as a System, Methodological Problems in Research on Masculinity-Femininity, Sexism in Family Research, Generation Gaps, The Agony and the Ecstasy of Longitudinal Research on Marriage, Childless Marriages, The Black Family, Communal Family Groups, Premarital Sexual Behavior, Research Problems in Family Planning, Theories of Mate Selection, The Impact of Family Research on Social Policy, Ethnic Group Family Structure. Some of the people who will be involved with these sessions will be: Murstein, Whitehurst, Bell, Broderick, Christensen, Bernard, Thomas, Olson, and Veevers.

The Education Section chaired by Barbara Chandler will focus on Community Programs as Resources for Family Education and Family Development. The program is being correlated with two major sessions for representatives of NCFR Affiliated Councils. A packet of materials will be sent to registrants so that we can all do our homework. Topics and leaders already chosen include: "Reaching Your Community Through a Family Life Conference," Jay D. Schvaneveldt; "Materials--Source, Selection, Use," Ronald Pitzer; "Homemaker Services," Florence Moore; "Church Programs--Intergenerational Family Life Education in a Voluntary Group Setting," William H. Genné; "Family Life Education Program, City Church," Margaret M. Sawin; "Family Service Agency," Margaret Thompson; "Social Security," Andrew Hofer; "Television: The Use of Mass Media as a Means of Providing Experiential Material in Family Relations," Norman L. Paul; "Adult Education: Rural Family Development," Boris Frank; "Media: Dialogue Regarding Sex Education," David Torbett; "Museums: The Family Evening Program," Helmuth Naumer; "Marriage Counseling Centers: Inter-Generational and Inter-Regional Variations in Pre-Marital Sex Values and its Implication for Family Life Education," John T. Greene; "Value Stance of High School Teachers Regarding the Family," Richard K. Kerckhoff; "Day Care Programs," Barbara Sawyer; "Community Mental Health Center," Darrell Spoon; "Parental Guidance in the Character Education of Their Children," Herman Williams; "Parent Participation: A Demonstration Project Focusing on New Dimensions for Community Service," Jane Berry; "Extension Services," June Bricker. There will also be sessions built around films such as: "The Eye of the Storm," "The World of Peri Thomas," and "Rock-a-Bye Baby."

Michael Sporakowski, Chairman of the Family Action Section, is planning sessions on the following topics: Alternate Life Styles, Developing a Private Family Life Agency, Sexism in Children's Books, Courses on Women, Legal Remedies for Discrimination in Higher Education, Hyponatolgy, Nonviolence and the Family, Abortion Papers, Pre-Marital Counseling for Teenagers, Family Camping, Variations in the Family: Where It's Headed?, Women's Liberation, a Community Sex Education Project. Some of the people leading or consulting on the topics are: C. Bruce Grossman, Lenore J. Weitzman, Lonny Myers, James Lieberman, Carl Broderick, Robert Kelley, Martha Arnold and Jane Berry, and Gordon Stevenson and Roger Mellot.

The Counseling Section, with William Eastman chairing it, has made plans for the following persons and topics: Joseph Trainer--Marital Stresses Among Professional Students and Marital Stresses of Executive and Professional People; Harold Lief--Effects of Marital Conflict on the Sexual Development of Children; David Reed--To Tell the Truth: Management of Cognitive Dissonance in Counseling; Jay Skidmore--Group Marriage Counseling for Doctoral Students in Counseling: Goals, Problems, Issues and Changes; Shirley S. Angrist--Counseling with College Women on Career Aspirations; Gerhard Neubeck--Extra-Marital Relations and Counseling; Bert Glassberg--The Counselor and Confidentiality; John Greene and panel--Some Unique Psycho-social Factors in Marital Interaction Patterns of Black Couples as Seen in a Clinical Setting; William Nichols--Therapeutic Intervention in Marital Discord; John Burton--Group Experience: Theory and Practice in Counseling; Frederick Humphrey--Critical Moments in Marriage Counseling.

Theodore Johannis, Chairman of the Special Emphases Section, has not yet chosen all of his topics or discussion leaders. However, at this time he can tell us that his sessions will be devoted to the important topic of the Family and Leisure.

Most of the Sections will be offering at least one workshop opportunity. Those already on the drawing boards are: a research workshop on family theory, one on population control, one on writing for professional publications and one on the development and use of family study centers.

Special features will also include a series of meetings under the leadership of NCFR officers and Executive Committee members on Directions and Development of NCFR.

Conversation hours are being arranged so that younger members who would like to do so can meet and talk with some of the people they've read about but haven't met.

Encounter groups will be available for a limited number of participants; film sessions are being scheduled by Deryck Calderwood; some special demonstrations are being planned; and a "drop out" room and book exhibit is being set up for people who want to drop out of their scheduled group and have a cup of coffee with a fellow delinquent or catch up on their reading. Gladys Phelan is chairman of the 1971 Book Exhibit.

All this and recreation, too. Available both on schedule and off schedule will be swimming, tennis, horseback riding, hiking, games, handicrafts and the magnificent Rockies. Bring your musical instruments!

We are also on the trail of a couple of most exciting plenary speakers who will be announced later, and we're planning for entertainment that will be more than a substitute for city night life.

Special groups may arrange meetings by getting in touch with program chairman, Eleanore Luckey, or Ruth Jewson. One such group that is already under way with plans is the Affiliated Councils. They will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. on the topic of "PPB for Affiliated Councils." A later session will be on "Citizen Participation in Family Relations Programs."

If groups wish to get together for meals, this too can be arranged if you let us know in time. How about a Merrill-Palmer breakfast, or a Minnesota lunch, or a Columbia T.C. hour? Those who are interested in follow-up plans of the White House Conference on Children and Youth, or the Aging can schedule yourselves a slot of time. The program is designed for this kind of flexibility and this kind of communication. Help us take advantage of it.

Finally, there are some things you should know about Estes Park in order to do your best planning. Remember that mornings and evenings are cool. Afternoons are warmer. The temperature will probably vary from 49 to 80 degrees. Plan to live mainly in slacks, pants suits, warm sweaters and jackets. Bring a rain coat. Groups will often meet outdoors, where vigorous discussion will go on in the midst of alluring scenery.

If you wish to vacation and to sight-see in the Rockies before or after the Annual Meeting, an Estes Park Directory may be obtained from the Estes Park Chamber of Commerce, Box 480, Estes Park, Colorado, 80517. A publication on camping, "Camping in the National Park System," Catalogue No. I29.71:968 may be ordered by sending 25¢ to the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, D.C., 20402.

Information on transportation from the Denver airport to Estes will be included in the May Newsletter, courtesy of Paul Hansen, our able local arrangements chairman.

SUMMER WORKSHOPS 1971

NCFR-Approved Workshops: The first four workshops have qualified for co-sponsorship by the NCFR in accordance with the criteria set forth by the NCFR's Family Life Education Committee.

Ontario, Canada

Sheridan College, Oakville (near Toronto), Ontario, Canada, will host a NCFR-approved workshop July 5-16, entitled "New Approaches in Family Life Education." Co-directors will be Joel Moss, Chairman, Child Development, Family Relations, Brigham Young University, and Don Wilson, Family Life Consultant at Sheridan College. Among the guest speakers will be Eleanore Luckey, Chairman, Child Development and Family Relations, University of Connecticut; Richard Kerckhoff, Chairman, Child Development and Family Relations, Purdue University; Howard Irving, University of Toronto. Topics will include significant issues in family life education, the teacher and values, building relationships with students, resources in family life education, and the teacher as a researcher. The workshop will emphasize new and creative ideas in teaching family life education and applying concepts to influence behavior. Graduate credit will be given by Brigham Young University for those interested. Inexpensive residence facilities are available. Contact Don Wilson, Family Life Consultant, Sheridan College, Brampton, Ontario, Canada.

Colorado

In conjunction with the Annual Meeting of NCFR, a Family Life Education Workshop directed by Richard N. Hey of the University of Minnesota, and Gladys Phelan of Colorado State University will be held August 18-28. The place is the Hague House, YMCA of the Rockies, Estes Park, Colorado. A blanket fee will cover workshop registration, NCFR Annual Meeting registration, and room and board. This workshop is designed for secondary teachers in the family life field and the related areas of home economics, health, and social studies education. It is also relevant for family life educators in general, and cooperative extension personnel. Focal areas will be the family life educator as resource; philosophy, scope and sequence of family life education; the evaluation of materials; the experience of utilizing different methods; and curriculum development in accordance with developmental concerns of students. Attendance at this workshop will give a good opportunity to attend the Annual Meeting as an integral part of the workshop, a delightful way to end a summer vacation in scenic Colorado's Rocky Mountains, and the opportunity to return to teaching with new ideas and up-to-date information. Three graduate or undergraduate credits. Applications for admission to the workshop may be made by writing the following individuals: Minnesota residents to Richard N. Hey, Minnesota Family Study Center, 1035 Social Science Tower, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55455; all others write to Gladys K. Phelan, Child Development and Family Relations, Rockwell Hall East, Colorado State University, Fort Collins, Colorado 80521.

Illinois

Evelyn and Sylvanus Duvall will lead a Family Life Education Workshop June 21-30, at George Williams College. Other leaders will be Barbara Hawkins, Director of Family Life Education, Chicago Public Schools, and Thomas Janeway, Director of the Division of Sex Education, Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Springfield, Illinois. Content of the workshop will include understanding of cultures, philosophies and behavioral science findings for family life attitudes and values; opportunity to survey the literature and to discuss problems with experts; and ideas, concepts for methods of community planning for schools, agencies, and individual projects. Generally, the first week will concentrate on "knowledge;" the second week will turn to implementation and "grass roots" planning for programs. Three graduate credits. Tuition is $100. Reservations with a $10 deposit must be made by June 1 with Helen E. Westerberg, Family Life Education Workshop Director, George Williams College, 555 - 31st Street, Downers Grove, Illinois 60515.

Iowa

The Department of Home Economics, University of Iowa, in cooperation with the University of Northern Iowa, are offering a workshop in Family Life Education July 6-23. Resource leaders will be James Keller and James Croake, members of the Department of Home and Family Life, School of Home Economics, Florida State University. Small groups will meet for study, research, film viewing, consultation with faculty, and field trip experiences. Afternoon sessions will focus on lectures and discussion with resource leaders. The workshop will survey several key areas: (1) the nature of family life education today; (2) the qualities of leadership needed for creative work in the field; (3) current methods and materials needed for different professional areas; (4) developing interpersonal relationships in the family; and (5) the future of the family in America. The workshop is planned for professional leaders in the field who are working in areas related to family life education: school administrators, clergy, social workers, teachers, counselors, and similar professions. Pre-registration is recommended in order to insure admission. Write Kenneth D. Barringer, Instructor in Family Life Education, Department of Home Economics, The University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa 52240. Three semester credits. Fee, $90. Registrants may secure their meals and lodging at the Iowa Memorial Union, where the workshop is to be held, by advance reservation. Enrollment is limited, and applicants must meet requirements for admission to the College of Liberal Arts or to the Graduate College.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON FAMILY RELATIONS

1219 UNIVERSITY AVENUE SOUTHEAST
MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA 55414

AREA CODE 612 331-2774

March 1971

Dear Student Member:

NCFR is a creatively changing organization. During the coming years some exciting challenges and opportunities lie ahead, and I would like to encourage your active participation in them. NCFR needs input and responses from student members in a variety of ways. Active participation in the organization makes your membership especially worthwhile, since it can provide valuable benefits for you as well as serving the organization. Contact with professionals from around the country, information on job openings and career possibilities, up-to-date information and news in a fast-moving interdisciplinary field--all of these are tangible benefits from deep involvement in NCFR activities.

We are looking for warm bodies and sharp minds to do the following:

(1) Actively serve in the near future a two-year term as student representatives to these standing committees: Executive Committee, Board of Publications, Committee on Affiliated Groups, Membership Committee, Committee on International Liaison, Committee on Standards and Certification.

(2) Work with the newly-initiated, action-oriented task forces: Public Relations and Responsibilities of NCFR; Population and Family Planning; Family Assistance Programs; Response to the Presidential Commission on Obscenity and Pornography; Response to the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

(3) Attend the Annual Meeting in Estes Park, Colorado, August 25-28, 1971.

(4) Submit a working paper or project description (eg. thesis or research proposal, project summary) to serve as a basis for a student seminar at the Annual Meeting, in which critical ideas can be exchanged.

If you are interested in following through on one or more of these activities, please let me know as soon as possible. More information on some of them will appear in the next issue of the Newsletter.

Sincerely,

James W. Maddock
Student Representative to the Executive Committee
