the value of children

a cross-national study

published by the Population Institute of the East-West Center ㊦

This projected seven-volume series reports a cross-cultural study, conducted by social scientists in five Asian countries and the United States, of the social, economic, and psychological satisfactions and costs of children as they are perceived by parents.

What determines rates of childbirth? What determines the kinds of social policies and programs likely to be effective for regulating fertility levels? The data in these studies provide new insights into the cultures examined.

"We met her, by chance, at the end of a hallway, in a nursing home in north-central Pennsylvania. She was what most of us hope never to be . . . old and sick. But she had good care, good friends, and great courage. We made a film about her, and in the process we became her friends. At the end of that friendship, she died."

● ROLE STRUCTURE AND ANALYSIS OF THE FAMILY NEW!

by F. Ivan Nye with Howard M. Bahr, Stephen J. Bahr, John E. Carlson, Viktor Gecas, Steven McLaughlin and Walter E. Slocum
Sage Library of Social Research, Volume 24

The increasing tempo of change in the American family structure and behavior makes this volume especially timely. Most family research has been too fragmentary to provide any adequate description of family behavior. This volume presents the first major segment of a broad program analyzing American family roles. Data were collected from 210 randomly selected parents of third-grade students and compiled into this large study which explores role behavior of families with pre-adolescent children.

1976 / 224 pages / $12.00 (cloth) / $7.00 (paper)

● THE VIOLENT HOME: A Study of Physical Aggression Between Husbands and Wives

by Richard J. Gelles

Foreword by Murray Straus

Sage Library of Social Research, Volume 13

Using in-depth interviews, Gelles examines the incidence, types and causes of physical violence between husbands and wives. Educational background, occupational situation and economic status are analyzed—as are the dynamics of family violence.

1974 / 232 pages / $10.00 (cloth) / $6.00 (paper)

● MARITAL INCOMPATIBILITY AND SOCIAL CHANGE IN EARLY AMERICA

by Herman Lantz Southern Illinois University at Carbondale

Marital incompatibility has been long considered a contemporary concomitant of the urbanization and industrialization of America. This paper suggests that the rate of marital incompatibility in the eighteenth century approached that of the divorce rates in the nineteenth century.

More than 95,000 eighteenth century newspaper issues, spotlight advertisements that declare a married couple to be no longer living together, are analyzed. These advertisements, indicating "separation from bed and board," are tallied to establish rates of marital incompatibility—and then compared to national divorce rates, which first appeared in 1870.

1976 / In the Sage Research Paper Series (90-026) / $3.00

● SONS OR DAUGHTERS: A Cross-Cultural Survey of Parental Preferences

by Nancy E. Williamson

Sage Library of Social Research, Volume 31

Touches base at a wide range of relevant issue within the area of current marital and familial behavior. Provides both a comprehensive survey of the research already completed in the sex-preference field and the conclusions that can be reached from that body of work. The gaps in our knowledge are thus also pointed out, giving direction to future research. Much valuable information is presented on the social structural conditions that create pronounced son preference in many agrarian societies, and daughter preference in a very small minority of societies.
