PRESIDENT'S COLUMN

Gerhard Neubeck

It was gratifying to have responses from members this time around and I am pleased that there are some people "out there" who want to be heard from.

Speaking about "keeping in touch," I must share an episode with you that illustrates a rather unusual moment of communication. I recently made a presentation at a Conference on Psychotherapy. Before I went on, a man in his thirties came up to me and said that he had wanted to meet me all his life because...my father (who died about 8 years ago) was the family physician who took care of him when he was an infant and also saved his dad's life.

Can you imagine the thrill? Some way of being in touch with my father!

You will find news about Board meeting actions in other spaces of this Newsletter. I think you will be satisfied about our decisions in regard to state councils; there is more flexibility possible than first assumed.

It also is clear that any dissatisfaction between student members and regular members has been dispelled. The Board cherishes student members, knowing fully well that they will constitute the Board of tomorrow. Incidentally, I remember only too well how sudden the transition was from being a young Turk at one moment and a member of the establishment the next.

The next Board will have a member of Minorities on it. The vote came out that way and I am very happy that we can count on steady input from that direction from now on. Juxtaposed with the forthcoming special issue of the JOURNAL OF MARRIAGE AND THE FAMILY on the Black Family under Marie Peter's editorship, it was fortuitous to have evidence that NCFR is not just lily-white.

We are all getting interested in the White House Conference on the Family scheduled for December of 1979. Not much is known about its format, focus or political fragrance. So let us not get too excited at this time and develop unrealistic expectations. But I have appointed a committee to get NCFR involved in the planning strategies as well as coming up with suggestions and recommendations for the substantive issues to be discussed at the Conference. Your COFO newsletter will also keep you informed about these developments. If you have any wisdom about the Conference, please share it with me and I'll pass it on to our committee.

Last but not least, in this letter I would like to congratulate Ruth Jewson who recently earned a Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. May I share a doggerel I made up for a party we had for her on that occasion. (Remember my wife's name is Ruth.)

You know of Ruth who is my wife
but there is a second Ruth in my life
the NCFR Ruth indeed is now Ph.D-ed
a toast to Ruth who's arrived.

I hope that the whole membership joins me in that toast.

WASHINGTON COLUMN

White House Conference on Families

The White House Conference on Families is scheduled for December 9-13, 1979. At long last, there is significant movement toward organizing this Conference.

President Carter has announced the appointment of Wilbur Cohen, former Secretary of HEW and now Dean of the School of Education at the University of Michigan, as National Chairman for the White House Conference. It is expected that the appointment of Dr. Cohen will soon be followed by the naming of members of the National Advisory Committee, and the announcement of an Executive Director and a Deputy-Executive Director to administer the Conference on a day-to-day basis.

NCFR, through both COFO (the Coalition of Family Organizations) and the larger Coalition for the White House Conference on Families, will continue to play an active role in the planning for the White House Conference on Families.

The Conference will explore all facets of family life in America. The President has said: "The main purpose of this White House Conference will be to examine the strengths of American families, the difficulties they face, and the ways in which family life is affected by public policies. The Conference will examine the important effects that the world of work, the mass media, the court system, private institutions, and other major facets of our society have on American families." If any of you has questions, please let me know, and I will do the best I can to answer them.

Coalition of Family Organizations (COFO)

Most of you have received the second edition of the COFO Memo (the Winter-Spring edition of 1978). The third edition is now in preparation, and you should be receiving it by early June.

In addition to publication of the COFO Memo, which remains as a high priority of COFO, COFO continues to be active as an advocacy organization on behalf of its four constituent organizations, NCFR, AAMFC, AHEA, and FSAA. For example, on March 8, 1978, Suzanne Steinmetz, University of Delaware, represented COFO in presenting testimony on the issue of domestic violence before the Senate Subcommittee on Child and Human Development.

The four COFO organizations plan to continue using this Coalition as a vehicle for joint testimony and joint advocacy on certain issues, and based on our early efforts, it appears that this will become an extremely important function.

On April 26, Ruth Jewson, Gerhard Neubeck, Paul Glick, and I, with representatives of the other three COFO organizations, met in Washington to establish guidelines and procedures for the future operation of COFO. Since it is clear that COFO has survived its initial, experimental phase, the time has come for some attention to organizational problems.

National Health Insurance Panel

Professor Lawrence Gaughan, a law professor at Washington University, chairs a NCFR Ad Hoc Committee on "Special Mental Concerns in National Health Insurance." Professor Gaughan and his task force are in the process of developing an official NCFR position paper on this critically important issue, for presentation later in the year before appropriate Executive Branch officials and Congressional committees, as well as other interested organizations and groups. This effort parallels a similar effort on welfare reform, which proved to be a useful vehicle for developing and publicizing NCFR positions on national policy issues having a major impact on American families.

The Administration is committed to introducing some type of national health insurance legislation prior to the adjournment of the present Congress. While there has been a great deal of news speculation as to the scope of the Administration bill, no final decisions have been made; therefore, it is too early to predict exactly what that bill will look like. It is my belief, based on what I have seen and heard, that the mental health coverage under this package will be very limited in terms of coverage of outpatient treatment by those in private practice. However, the mental health coverage may be somewhat more generous in terms of treatment at community mental health centers and health maintenance organizations.

Another important development affecting the mental health coverage under this Administration's national health insurance proposal was the release at the end of April of the final report of the President's Commission on Mental Health. This report makes recommendations concerning mental health coverage under national health insurance; and since Mrs. Carter chairs the President's Commission, those recommendations should be taken seriously, and may have some impact on the final development of the Administration's national health insurance proposal.

In the meantime, the Administration's hospital cost containment legislation is still bogged down in the Congress, and it is clear that there will be no movement on national health insurance until this issue is resolved.

It is my hope that NCFR will be in a position to develop a comprehensive position on national health insurance, focusing on both the mental health aspects of any proposed legislation and on family stability.

I will keep you posted on this issue and the developments of the NCFR position paper in future newsletter columns.

Coalition for the White House Conference on Families

The Coalition for the White House Conference on Families, in cooperation with the Johnson Foundation of Racine, Wisconsin, convened a national conference, April 19-21, at Wingspread, the Johnson Foundation's conference center. The conference focused on the strengths of American family life. Attending the meeting were a group of scholars, religious leaders, and representatives of national organizations serving family needs. Gerhard Neubeck represented NCFR.

Some of the speakers at the three-day meeting were Robert Hill, Director, Department of Research, National Urban League, the Reverend Richard Neuhaus, Senior Editor, Worldview Magazine, David Cohen, Director, Center for Educational Policy Research, Harvard University, John L. McKnight, Center for Urban Affairs, Northwestern University, John P. Spiegel, Brandeis University, and Frank Reissman, New Human Services Institute.

Groves Conference

The 1978 Groves Conference on Marriage and the Family was held April 27-30, 1978, in Washington, D.C. The theme was "Toward the White House Conference on Families, 1979, A Plan for Action," and the chairman of the program committee was Marvin Sussman. In addition to Dr. Sussman, several other NCFR members were actively involved in the Groves Conference. I spoke as a NCFR representative at a workshop on federal legislation, and at one of the plenary meetings on the President's Commission on Mental Health.

In the next newsletter, I will attempt to summarize some of the major recommendations developed from the Groves Conference, since these recommendations might have some impact on the planning for the White House Conference on Families.

Post-Conference Workshop on Family Therapy.

The Counseling Section is planning to sponsor a post-conference workshop with one of the prominent family therapists from the East Coast. The workshop will focus on the application of his theory and techniques in the actual practice of family therapy. It will be held at the Sheraton Hotel on Sunday, October 22nd, from 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

There will be a registration fee of $5.00 or less to help defray some of the costs of the workshop. Registration is open to Counseling Section members on a first come, first serve basis, up to a maximum of 100 participants. Members of other sections may sign up on a waiting list and will be admitted if there is space.

Please indicate your interest in such a workshop by filling out the form at the end of the Newsletter and returning it to the National Office AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

Education: PRIMARY PREVENTION, NEW APPROACHES FOR PARENTS (Panel Discussion with Ann Ellwood, Minnesota Early Learning Design, Minneapolis, Judith Evans, High Scope Educational Research Foundation, Ypsilanti, Michigan, David L. REPORT FROM THE FAMILY ACTION SECTION

In its last two meetings, members of NCFR's Board of Directors have discussed the future of the Family Action Section. I have consistently taken the position that social action should be an organization-wide concern, with family action evident in all of our Sections and in all relevant activities of the organization. In between the two Board meetings, members of the Section were asked their opinion about a plan to eliminate the Family Action Section in favor of an attempt to make social action a broader thrust of the entire organization.

Although a large majority of the persons responding favored such a plan—with many feeling very positively about it—there were a significant minority who felt very strongly that a separate Section was necessary. Some of these persons felt the Section is what attracted them to NCFR, and others stated that by eliminating the Section we might run the risk of losing what minimal social action thrust NCFR does have at the moment.

Because feelings about this issue are strong, I felt the wisest course was to move cautiously. I suggested—and the Board of Directors agreed at its April meeting—to postpone any action which would alter the Section. In the meantime, I propose 1) that we make every effort to continue the Section, to strengthen it, and to support the activities of its members; and 2) that we continue discussion of how NCFR can be most effective in the arena of social action.

I am grateful to those who sent responses to the proposal. I think it will be important for us to continue to examine the role of social action in NCFR. We should consider how we can be effective with the current Section format, but also whether there are alternative ways of strengthening the role of family action in NCFR.

Graham B. Spanier, Chair
Family Action Section

THE ROLE OF STUDENTS IN THE NATIONAL COUNCIL ON FAMILY RELATIONS

The following position statement was supported by the NCFR Board of Directors at their meeting in April 1978:

One of the major strengths of the National Council on Family Relations, from a student perspective, has been the manner in which the organization has encouraged student participation. Students became officially represented on the Executive Committee and the Board of Directors in 1970 when James Maddock and Roger Rubin became the first student representatives. (Note: Two former student representatives, Douglas Sprenkle and Charles Figley, were of invaluable aid in preparing a historical perspective of this issue.) This action seemed to be the result of student involvement in developing the Family Action Section of the NCFR and of student efforts during the late 1960's to gain representation in the organizational structure. Apparently it was the consensus of the NCFR membership at that time that it would be reasonable for the largest minority in the organization to be officially represented.

During the early 1970's, student participation in the NCFR became increasingly institutionalized. While early student representatives were appointed, student representatives were being elected by 1973. The format of junior and senior representatives was begun in 1971. The organization also decided in 1971 to help defray professional expenses incurred by student representatives. Positions for student representatives were developed for the various other NCFR committees. A variety of services for students, including an employment service, a student award, STUDENT PERSPECTIVES, and a student news column were instituted. During this same period, student members were encouraged to become involved in various activities of the organization. Students have, for example, participated on task forces and presented papers at annual meetings.

The dominant orientation of the NCFR leadership in recent years has been to maximize student involvement. The organization has apparently seen two primary benefits of this position. First, as student members comprise the future leaders of the profession, it is to the benefit of students and the NCFR to involve students. Participation in activities of the organization serves as an important learning experience and also reinforces active professionalism. Such professional experience can produce more qualified professionals. Secondly, students can bring fresh viewpoints and perspectives to the organization. In effect, they represent an "infusion of new blood." While this can and sometimes does create tension, it also seems necessary to the continued vitality of a professional organization.

It is the view of the current student representatives and of many former student representatives that the organization and students can and should maintain such a mutually beneficial relationship. It is our belief that NCFR should continue to encourage the participation of student members in the organization at all levels. As in the past, maximizing student involvement will require a reduction in the cost of membership for students and other similar services. Finally, the recent reorganization of the state councils provides an opportunity to increase the involvement of students at the state level, and it is our position that the NCFR should initiate efforts to increase student participation at this level. Participation at the state level would be a way for students to gain valuable professional experience and make professional contributions without the prohibitive costs often associated with national events.

In summary, it is our position that the orientation toward students developed in the NCFR during the last decade should be maintained. Moreover, programs and services developed during that period should be continued, and the organization should seek to increase the participation of students in the future. The student membership of NCFR is still largely an untapped resource.

STATE, REGIONAL, AND LOCAL COUNCILS

The NCFR Board of Directors at its April meeting reaffirmed its support of the Congress of Affiliated Councils as a functioning unit of the NCFR. The Congress will retain representation on the NCFR Board of Directors. The NCFR will continue to have Regional Representatives, with the recommendation made that such representatives should have been active in Affiliated Councils before being elected as regional representatives.

The NCFR Board also confirmed its support of Regional and Local Councils and their affiliation with the NCFR.

Membership cards for NCFR State Chapters, and for Regional and Local Councils, are provided by those organizations rather than by the NCFR. Contact your local, state, or regional group if you do not have your membership card.

ALABAMA:

The new president of the Alabama Council is Mary Catherine Beasley, Program Director, Continuing Education in Home Economics, University of Alabama, University, Alabama 35486.

ARIZONA:

Among the many activities of the FAMILY LIFE COUNCIL OF GREATER TUCSON are sponsorship of a conference on Child Abuse and Family Violence, May 4-6; co-sponsorship of a film, panel, and discussion series on The Family, Stresses and Strains; and cooperation, during 1978 Youth Awareness Week, in the presentation of the Arizona Conference on Youth, Their Values, and the Community, April 12-14. IN MEMORIAM

Wilmer L. Pew

Wilmer L. Pew, M.D., a Minneapolis pediatrician and psychiatrist, died of a heart attack, March 29th. He and his wife Miriam, also a NCFR member, were well-known as a "Marriage Team," working together to make innovative contributions to the field of marriage counseling and human relations. His honors included: Licentiate—American Board of Pediatrics, Fellow—American Academy of Pediatrics, President—Oregon Society of Individual Psychology, President—American Society of Adlerian Psychology (three terms), Diplomate—American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology, Continuing Medical Education Awards—American Medical Association, 1969, 1973, 1975, Distinguished Service to the Family Award—Minnesota Council on Family Relations, 1973, Certificate in Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy—National Accreditation Association for Psychoanalysis, 1974.

Dr. Pew had specialty training in four Institutions, membership in twenty-two professional organizations, and was mentioned in five Biographical listings.

In addition to a private practice, he was co-director of the Rudolf Dreikurs Institute for Social Equality, and organized countless workshops and programs concerning family stress, marital therapy and child guidance.

He co-authored a biography of Dr. Rudolf Dreikurs, a close personal friend, entitled "The Courage to be Imperfect."

Bill Pew is survived by his wife, five children, and two grandchildren.

Charles D. Roberts
1912-1977

The NCFR office recently learned that services were held June 27, 1977, at Ft. Sill for Major Charles Donald Roberts, retired. He was buried with full military honors. Major Roberts was a personal research psychologist for the U. S. Army, and served as Chief of Testing, Department Headquarters, Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indiana. He was particularly interested in population and manpower, criminology and penology, and social psychology, and belonged to innumerable organizations pertinent to his concerns.

His wife, who survives him, wrote that he had an immense library. She has donated his books to Cameron University, an Indian School, and Oklahoma State University at Stillwater.

INTERIM REPORT JOURNAL OF FAMILY HISTORY TAMARA K. HAREVEN, EDITOR

In the last four issues the Journal of Family History has published a number of important contributions to the field. To list a few:

An article by Arthur E. Imhof presented to English-readers for the first time an exposition of the current use being made by German historical demographers of the genealogical records compiled in Germany in the 1920s and 30s, and the way in which these researches are integrated into the teaching of social history in the West German universities.

In "Family and Province," Pierre Goubert, dean of French Early Modern social history, surveyed recent research of French rural household structure in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and drew basic conclusions about the relationship of household size to the size of the unit of economic exploitation.

Peter Laslett, in "Characteristics of the Western Family over Time" reported on progress made by the Cambridge Group in England since the publication of his HOUSEHOLD AND FAMILY IN PAST TIME.

Stanley Engerman has contributed two major articles on the Black American family: a study of "Black Fertility and Family Structure" from 1880-1940; and an extended review of Gutman's THE BLACK FAMILY IN SLAVERY AND FREEDOM, 1750-1925.

Glen Elder's "Family History and the Life Course" formulated "the conceptual and methodological parameters of the life course approach, especially as regards its usefulness to family historians."

Coming—DAVIS CENTER ISSUE: The special issue of essays submitted by scholars-in-residence at the Shelby Cullom Davis Center, Princeton University, which was guest edited by Professor Lawrence Stone, will be forthcoming in the Summer Issue, 1978; LATIN AMERICAN ISSUE: The Special Issue on the History of the Family in Latin America will be published in the winter of 1979. This special issue is an outgrowth of two conferences, in which Dr. Tamara Hareven collaborated with Dr. Louis Wolfe Goodman, director of the Latin America Program at S.S.R.C., and with Professor Peter Smith of the University of Wisconsin, Chairman of the S.S.R.C.'s Latin American committee, in the development of historical studies of the family in Latin America; WOMEN'S WORK AND FAMILY ECONOMIC STRATEGIES ISSUE: The Rockefeller Foundation has funded the application submitted jointly by Tamara Hareven and Catharine Stimpson, editor of SIGNS, for a conference on women's labor force participation and family economic strategies, which will result in two special issues, one for the JOURNAL OF FAMILY HISTORY and one for SIGNS, each journal publishing the conference essays most relevant for their respective areas of concentration. In recognizing the importance of the subject, the Rockefeller Foundation has decided to host the Conference, and has invited Hareven and Stimpson to direct it as one of the conferences in the Humanities Series; FAMILY POLICY: In preparation for the White House Conference, the JOURNAL will publish a number of essays pertaining to the historical aspects of family policy in the United States; BIBLIOGRAPHY ISSUE: The National Endowment for the Humanities, Research Tools Division, has just awarded the JOURNAL a supplemental grant in the amount of $8,668. Approximately 5,500 bibliography items have been accumulated to date. Research in western and eastern Europe and North America is largely completed, and there is a growing file of "general" entries—"general" in a theoretical, methodological, or geographical sense. Bibliographers are at work in the remaining fields.

For subscription information for the JOURNAL OF FAMILY HISTORY, which publishes new empirical findings on family and kinship from an ever widening range of places and periods, and which presents new theoretical concepts and methodologies, drawing on sociology, anthropology, and demography, contact the NCFR office.

CALL FOR PAPERS

THE FAMILY COORDINATOR announces the publication of a special issue on "Male Roles in the Family" for October 1979. Guest editors will be Robert A. Lewis and Joseph H. Pleck. Family counselors, family life educators, family researchers and policy-makers who are working especially with males in the family setting are encouraged to submit manuscripts of about 8-20 pages, double spaced, no later than December 31, 1978 as follows: Two copies to: Robert A. Lewis, Director, Center for Family Studies, Arizona State University, Tempe, Arizona 85281; one copy to: Joseph H. Pleck, Associate Director, Center for the Family, Skinner Hall, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Massachusetts 01003. Although articles on fatherhood will be considered for publication, articles on aspects of the other and less researched male positions in families are particularly encouraged, such as the husband, the brother, the grandfather, the step-father and the uncle. Articles may focus on roles such as the economic, affectional, recreational, sexual and therapeutic. Innovative, as well as traditional, roles that men play in families will be appropriate for this special issue.

Those submitting research studies will need to be aware that THE FAMILY COORDINATOR publishes reports of research, only if they are of particular interest to persons in the areas of counseling, education and family services. Papers therefore should be directed to professionals who work with members of families. At best, articles should attempt to integrate research, theory, policy and/or intervention. Finally, articles should be prepared according to the PUBLICA- TION MANUAL OF THE AMERICAN PSYCHOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION (2nd edition, 1974). To facilitate anonymous, outside review, the name of the author(s) and other identifying information should appear only on the title page.

INTERNATIONAL NEWS

THE ORGANIZATION ON FAMILY RELATIONS has been created in Greece in an effort to help the family to cope with the many problems within its unit; e.g., problems between husband and wife, children and their difficulties with social adaptation, and teenagers and their education and professional orientation. The Organization is also concerned with the unmarried mother and her child, and with premarital education. The Greek government has shown interest and there is hope that its support will be forthcoming. The central committee is composed of professionals, and the general director is Basilique Papadimitrion, 75 Skoufa str., Athens 144, Greece. She would welcome letters of support from NCFR members.

THE ISRAEL ASSOCIATION FOR MARITAL AND FAMILY THERAPY

AND FAMILY LIFE EDUCATION was formally founded on May 13, 1977. The Association is an interdisciplinary organization of professionals who work with families. Their inaugural meeting was held in August in conjunction with the 2nd International Congress of Family Therapy in Jerusalem, and the first Annual Meeting was in February, co-sponsored by the School of Social Work of Tel Aviv University. Three hundred people attended. On the basis of population size, this meeting attendance would correspond to a meeting of 16,500 in the U.S. The Third International Congress of Family Therapy will be held in July 1979 in Israel, preceded by training workshops. Family therapists who are interested in presenting workshops are invited to write to the Association's Executive Secretary, Yocheved Howard, Kibbutz Hazorea, 30060, Israel.

NEW GAMES FOUNDATION

This foundation is a non-profit organization created in 1974 to foster and communicate the concept of New Games, a unique play program. More than a list of games, "New Games" is an attitude toward play—an attitude that people can and should play together for the fun of it. By re-examining the basic ideas of competition and cooperation, New Games provides a recreational experience which encourages participation, creativity, and personal expression. Partners rather than opponents compete against the limits of their own abilities rather than each other. Write the Foundation at PO Box 7901, San Francisco, California 94120.

SELECT COMMITTEE ON POPULATION

On September 28, 1977, the U. S. House of Representatives passed a resolution establishing the Select Committee on Population. The Committee's responsibility is strictly oversight and investigative. Separate investigations and hearings on various aspects of population problems will encompass the acceptability and safety of available family planning methods; the improvement of existing methods of contraception; and improving the ability of governments to plan for slower population growth. One major focus of the Committee will be the current population activities of the Federal government.

ic settings, and solicits your cooperation. She would like anyone who has either an M.A. or Ph.D. in sociology, and is/has been working in a non-academic setting, to send her/his resume. Her address: 20 Norfolk Road, Arlington, Massachusetts 02174.

OLDER AMERICANS' MONTH OF MAY

May marks the 16th year that Older Americans' Month has been celebrated in the U.S. and its Territories. The theme this year is "Older Americans and the Family," which is meant to convey the idea not only of the natural family, but the community and national families as well. Among the purposes of Older Americans' Month are to: emphasize Older Americans' vital roles in American society; honor Older Americans and recognize their contributions; increase opportunities for Older Americans to make even greater contributions from their experience, skills, and wisdom; reach out for Older Americans living isolated lives and bring them back into the community, make known the needs of Older Americans and strengthen support of programs for them; demonstrate the effectiveness of services already operating for Older Americans; press communities and organizations to do more. For an information packet, write Office of Public Information, Administration on Aging, Washington, D.C. 20201.

SINGLE-FATHERS RESEARCH PROJECT

Ken Lewis and Dennis Orthner have been studying divorce and marriage rates with their implications for fathers who want legal child custody after the dissolution of their marriages. Their Single-Fathers Research Project will involve surveys of judges, attorneys and single fathers. The project, funded by the Grant Foundation, is expected to be completed by early summer. For information write them at 2901 Jefferson Drive, Greenville, North Carolina 27834.
