Before You Leave for the Conference

Review the Printed Program Carefully

Note all of the sessions you would like to attend. Highlight your "must sees."

Write out your schedule on a separate sheet of paper. Rank the presentations you want to attend, then those you are willing to forego. Try to schedule association business and committee meetings and receptions/parties. Be sure to include films you want to preview and appointments you make.

Make Networking Plans

Ask your colleagues to introduce you to people you want to meet.

As you review the program, include in your hourly schedule your available meal times. Then call or write to people you would like to meet to make appointments before the conference.

Read some of their books and articles for ease in conversing with them.

Bring return address labels or print your name and address on a sheet of peel-off labels so that you can quickly attach them to sign-up lists and order cards.

Bring along business cards to hand to exhibitors, presenters, and new friends.

Some conferences ask for student volunteers to help with running the event. Many student volunteers at NCFR conferences have become active members in our association.

Miscellaneous notes

To prepare for emergencies, leave the name and telephone number of the hotel, your schedule, and NCFR's number with your family and colleagues.

As you pack your clothes, create the image you want to project at the conference. This is particularly important if you are using the job service. Include clothes for exercise, and all types of weather.

Allow space in your luggage to bring home copies of papers, books, and flyers.

Promote Yourself at the Job Service

For many universities and colleges, the job service is a major place for initial interviews. The NCFR Employment Service lists job openings and candidate files, and provides a space for preliminary interviews. You may also meet prospective employers in sessions in addition to the interview.

Tips for Using the Employment Service

◆ Follow the directions explicitly when preparing your materials.

◆ Bring plenty of resumes and business cards with you. You may find out about openings in addition to the ones listed in the job service. Send your material before the conference so that you are listed in the initial files. Inform colleagues you are looking for a job. They may give your name to employers.

◆ Be assertive when you are at the conference. Register at the employment service when it opens, and keep coming back, because frequently new jobs are listed. Leave messages on the board for those you wish to contact, and keep checking. If there is no response to your notes, try leaving room messages, or ask colleagues to help find them, but keep trying! More people are trying to find jobs than there are job openings!

◆ Remember that you are making an impression at all conference events: sessions, receptions and parties. Network, dress, and conduct yourself appropriately. Send thank-you notes to all persons who gave you interviews.

Be An Active Participant in Conference Activities

Catch the Intellectual Highlights

Attend all main sessions. Usually these speakers are well-known in the family field.

If you are attending with several colleagues, choose several presentations so that you can cover more topics, and share information and handouts later.

Take notes during the sessions or purchase the Proceedings or tapes.

Attend a variety of sessions: posters, papers, round tables. Each offers unique ways of learning and networking. Small informal sessions offer opportunities for interaction between presenters and the audience.

Stay after sessions and introduce yourself to the speakers. However, be courteous of their time.

If sessions offer 3 or 4 papers, and only one is of interest to you, conference etiquette allows you to quietly enter or leave a session between papers. If several presentations conflict, leave a business card for the author to contact you or send a copy of the handout.

During a session think about the kinds of questions you may want to ask the speaker during the question and answer period. Don't ask a question that gives the impression you weren't listening. Keep questions brief. Don't seize the stage for yourself and refer to your own work.

Types of Sessions at the NCFR Conference

If you are registered and wearing a name badge, you are free to attend any sessions listed, with the exception of the receptions sponsored by colleges/universities. No advance reservations are required. When there are concurrent sessions you may choose which one to attend.

◆ Plenaries: General sessions attended by all registrants. Speakers focus in depth on the theme. No other sessions are scheduled during these sessions.

◆ Section Sponsored Paper/Symposia/Workshop Sessions: Each session has an overall theme. 3-4 papers are presented during the time period. Some include audience discussion. Symposia and Workshop sessions have a specific theme, and all papers are related to it. A moderator leads the discussion, and a discussant relates the papers to each other.

◆ Posters: Presentations summarized in graphic form. Posters are grouped by subject. Authors are present to discuss their work with you, and may have handouts for you to take home.

◆ Round Tables: Informal discussion sessions with 1 or more leaders doing a 10-15 minute overview of a specific topic. Round tables are limited to 10 participants per table, first-come first-served basis.

◆ Focus Groups: Special topic groups which meet for informal discussion of topics not central to existing Sections within NCFR.

Integrate With NCFR

◆ Membership in NCFR is a way to advance your career, and Sections are excellent networking tools. Becoming active in NCFR permits you to work with leaders in the field, via Sections.

◆ Attend business and Section membership meetings. Your input is important and promises ways of becoming active in the organization.

◆ NCFR depends on members for volunteer service to function effectively. It benefits you because you will be working side by side with key leaders.

Visit the Exhibits

Exhibits are an integral part of the NCFR conference. They provide one-stop shopping. Many publishers sell by mail, and this is your only chance to look at their materials before buying.

Check the exhibits directory carefully. There may be publishers, graduate schools, foundations and government agencies which offer grants, computer software companies, and other companies offering services for academics.

Pick up brochures and catalogues as you go through the exhibits and study them while you are at the conference. Go back to the booth and try to order what you want while you are there. Some give conference discounts, or find out if they sell materials at reduced prices at the end of the conference.

Take Advantage of Networking Opportunities

◆ Attend the First Timers Reception on Thursday morning, November 10, 8:30 am, and introduce yourself to their first-time attendees.

◆ Check name badges. They are often coded for students or first-time conference attendees. Suggest meeting for a snack or a meal. Arrange to meet at a central location such as registration so that it is easier to find each other.

◆ Be assertive. When you introduce yourself, have a brief 3-5 second explanation of the kind of work you do to help break the ice. Be a good listener!

To find someone, leave messages in several places: the NCFR message board; the front desk at the hotel; or under a guest's door.

◆ Attend receptions and parties, especially those sponsored by college departments. It is easier to talk in the relaxed atmosphere of these functions.

Use the central sitting areas with colleagues. This is a great place for people you know to introduce you to people they know.

◆ Exchange business cards when meeting new colleagues. Make notes on the back to remind yourself about significant information. Follow up with phone calls or notes after you return home.

Share rooms. Staying with a group of people you know adds to the fun and lowers expenses. If you want to room with someone, but don't know who, take advantage of NCFR's matching service.

◆ Go out to an each pay your own way dinner with others. Stop in the Hospitality Room (Directors Row 2 Room) and sign up to go out with a group. Members of the Minnesota Council on Family Relations will serve as your hosts.

Keep Physically Fit, Mentally Alert, and Safe

Make sure you get enough rest before going to the conference and once you are there. Fatigue is predictable due to a combination of late evenings, presentations, dinners, parties, early sessions and business meetings.

Don't skip meals. Try to eat a balanced diet.

Take work-out gear. The Hilton Hotel has free indoor exercise equipment.

◆ Violence is present everywhere, and it is wise to take safety steps while at the conference. 1) Don't wear your name badge outside the conference facility - it is obvious that you are a visitor. 2) Stay in groups when walking outdoors. 3) Use only unmarked rental cars. 4) When you are in your room, keep the door locked and the deadbolt engaged at all times. 5) If someone comes to your door, use the peephole to see who it is. Call the front desk or security if the person says that he/she is on the hotel staff to see if this is correct, and the visit is authorized. 6) Be alert when riding an elevator by yourself. 7) Leave valuables in the hotel safe deposit box.

Miscellaneous

◆ Frequently check for messages at the Message Board. Call the Hilton Hotel front desk for phone calls.

INNOVATIVE TEXTBOOKS DON'T JUST GROW ON TREES

They spring from visionary authors.
They're nurtured by dedicated editors.
They're brought to maturity by energetic publishing teams.

MARRIAGE AND THE FAMILY:

Diversity and Strengths

David Olson and John DeFrain

The first marriage and family text to personalize course material for students by providing them—and you, the instructor—with an attitude assessment tool used by thousands of professional marriage counselors (AWARE Inventory).

HUMAN SEXUALITY

Bryan Strong and Christine DeVault

The first human sexuality text to integrate research of gay, lesbian, and bisexual relationships; the first to feature the role of popular culture in media; and the first to truly include ethnic and cultural diversity as core content.

Other innovative texts by Mayfield:

INTIMATE RELATIONSHIPS, MARRIAGES, AND FAMILIES, second edition

Philip F. Rice

If you are interested in any of these titles or would like to speak to a Mayfield college representative, please call (800) 433-1279. Send e-mail through the internet to Jon Silvers at 74111.670@compuserve.com

BROOKS/COLE & WADSWORTH...

on family matters

New this fall—from Brooks/Cole

ADOLESCENT DEVELOPMENT: Early Through Late Adolescence

David E. Balk

Synthesizing early, middle, and late adolescent concerns, this text presents adolescence as a normal part of the human life span. Balk uses primary sources of research and offers detailed chapters related to physical, cognitive, self-concept, and social seasoning/moral reasoning changes, plus innovative coverage of issues such as gender intensification.

LIFE SPAN HUMAN DEVELOPMENT, 2/E

Carol K. Sigelman and David R. Shaffer

This topically organized, research-based text covers the physical, cognitive, and psychosocial aspects of human development, with attention to all periods of the life span. Combining the best of topical and chronological approaches, the book adeptly presents life span development as a "motion picture" rather than a series of individual "snapshots."

RESEARCH AND THEORY IN FAMILY SCIENCE

Randal D. Day, Kathleen Gilbert, Barbara H. Settles, and Wesley Burr

Current and in-depth—with contributions from well-known family scientists—this book illustrates the inner workings of family systems, and the activities and processes specific to families. Overall, it's an advanced look at the unique world of the family.

CHANGING FAMILIES

Judy Root Aulette

A landmark offering that explores how social-structural forces affect family experiences and how families and individuals influence and cope with social structure. Examining this interplay within a historical context, Aulette dispels myths about the monolithic family, helping students see their lives from a broader social perspective.

MARRIAGES AND FAMILIES:

Making Choices and Facing Change, 5/E

Mary Ann Lamanna and Agnes Riedmann

A long-standing bestseller that combines a decision-making perspective within a sociological framework to help students understand how their personal choices are influenced by broader social forces. (Includes an award-winning design in full-color!)

THE BLACK FAMILY:

Essays and Studies, 5/E

Robert Staples

Renowned for its readability, breadth of coverage, and scholarship, this collection of essays reflects important issues and interesting trends in Afro-American family life.

RESEARCH UPDATES FOR PRACTITIONERS (RUPS)

RUPS are summaries of state-of-the-art research to serve as a knowledge base for practitioners. They summarize and synthesize the latest research on a topic, suggest application methodologies, and give an overview of the current state of scholarly consensus.

93V2. "Families and Health," William J. Doherty - U of MN

In the past decade, there has been an explosion of new information about families and health. This presentation summarizes what we know about how families deal with chronic medical illness and disability, how they negotiate with health care professionals, and how they manage daily routines which promote health or illness. Dr. Doherty also looks at how caregivers' stress management can influence the physical well-being of all family members. The presentation emphasizes the information of most use to family professionals and offers recommendations for health policy and for applied work with families.

Comments: "Everyone in the health care industry should see this!"

93V3. "Marriage Preparation," Benjamin Silliman - U of WY

A review of research on the expectations of marriage and marital satisfaction serves as a context for understanding the success or failure of marriage preparation programs. Assessment tools and program outcomes in marriage preparation programs are discussed and evaluated. Implications for program development are offered.

Comments: "Presented evaluations of programs most effective for premarital preparation."

93V7. "Remarried Families," B. Kay Pasley - U of NC, Greensboro

Stepfamilies are fast becoming one of the most common family forms today. This research update examines the empirical literature on stepfamilies and emphasizes the common findings across studies.

The marital relationship, including stepparenting behaviors and roles, is the primary focus of the session. Special attention is given to identifying the key factors which result in positive outcomes for members of stepfamilies. Implications for marriage and family therapists, family life educators, and public policy makers are addressed.

Comments: "Practical, applicable, knowledge of the topic... Why was it beneficial? Reason: her mastery of all the pertinent research."

PLENARY SPEECHES FROM 1993 CONFERENCE

93V1. "Family Values Reconsidered," Andrew W. Billingsley - U of MD

Dr. Billingsley discusses how the basic values that enabled African American families to survive slavery and the Agricultural and Industrial Revolutions are being severely tested in the new Information Age. However, if these same values are understood and supported without political and scholarly distortion, they can help all families cope more effectively with the pressures generated by technological and social changes. He uses real life examples to illustrate the depth of the African American family structure.

Comments: "Raised the importance of being sensitive to racial/cultural differences. This was most beneficial because of the content selected for discussion, and critical issues of families were considered."

93V4. "Families, Communities, and Habits of the Heart,"

Jean Bethke Elshtain, Ph.D. - Vanderbilt U

Dr. Elshtain is concerned that American children are in peril, in part because they are less assured of the sustained care, support, and safety that comes only with order and nurturance in their immediate environments.

During her address she reminds us of why family matters and how we, as a society, can help to stem the tide of its decline. She explores what families do that no other institution can do. And why we have such a high stake—as individuals and as a people—in the struggle to sustain and nourish families in order that they might sustain and nourish America's children.

Comments: "It focused on what we need to reflect on and may often omit in our course work, theory, and teaching practice... The need for a new paradigm for how to live a life."

93V6. "The Gendered Family and the Development of a Sense of Justice," Susan Moller Okin - Stanford U

Contemporary research in moral psychology confirms the age-old observations that young children can show signs of having a moral sense. Moral potential is there to be fostered or stifled.

Dr. Okin argues that unless families themselves are just and fair, unless children observe values exemplified in those closest to them, they are unlikely to develop these values. Thus, justice within the family, and in most cases, between the sexes, is crucial to the development of a sense of justice.

Comments: "She was right on and opened my eyes further to gender differences."

INTERNATIONAL YEAR OF THE FAMILY SESSION

93V5. "Family Health Policy Forum," Sponsored by W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

This special session is an effort to address the major issues impacting the well-being of families in this country and beyond. The outcome is to encourage attendees to take leadership roles around family health issues in their communities. Stephen Lewis, Julia Walsh, and Cynthia Myntti make up the panel. Barbara Elliott, moderator, and Margaret Feldman, NCFR's Washington representative, review how the United States health care system could benefit from incorporating these models.

Comments: "Excellent - each gave a valuable perspective and new ideas... Insights gleaned from a cross-cultural perspective enrich all our thinking of this important topic."

Purchase tapes at the conference or contact NCFR for complete ordering information. Taxes and postage charges may apply.

Information continued from front inside cover.

Within a short cab ride are three major art museums, the award-winning Guthrie Theater, more than 20 live theaters, the University of Minnesota, the Metrodome (home of the MN Vikings), Target Center (home of the Timberwolves), and the Mississippi.

A shuttle bus to the Mall of America, the largest retail and entertainment complex in the U.S., is available about a block from the hotel. Downtown St. Paul with many additional dining, shopping, and entertainment options is less than 15 minutes away by cab or car.

We think you will find Minneapolis a friendly, hospitable, and fun place to visit while attending the conference.

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON FAMILY RELATIONS

The National Council on Family Relations (NCFR) is a member-funded, non-profit, non-partisan organization for professionals in the family field.

NCFR Mission Statement:

The National Council on Family Relations provides a forum for family researchers, educators, and practitioners to share in the development and dissemination of knowledge about families and family relationships, establishes professional standards, and works to promote family well-being.

Founded in 1938, NCFR has a membership of 3,900 professionals throughout the world. It publishes two premier journals, Journal of Marriage and the Family and Family Relations.

The Annual Conference implements

NCFR's mission by promoting cutting edge research, policy agendas, and networking opportunities for multidisciplinary professionals who deliver services to families. Approximately 1,200 professionals and graduate students attend the conference.

Objectives of the NCFR Annual Conference:

- To provide a means for professionals to disseminate cutting edge research and policy information in the diverse fields of the family (i.e. therapy, law, medicine, psychology, sociology, social work, etc.).

- To enable attendees the opportunity to network with leading professionals in the family field.

- To share stimulating presentations by plenary speakers and hold Sectional meetings, in varied formats to provide professional development research opportunities.

- To offer attendees continuing education credits.

- To present the latest audio-visual materials in the family field in exhibits and film screenings throughout the conference.

- To give members of the National Council on Family Relations an opportunity to learn more about the governance of the organization and provide opportunities for involvement in various conference activities.

- To provide a forum for public policy discussion.
