

DR. S. E. GOLDSTEIN, FAMILY AUTHORITY

Rabbi Emeritus of Stephen
Wise Free Synagogue Dies
—Marriage Counselor

The Rev. Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, rabbi emeritus of the Stephen Wise Free Synagogue, died late Saturday night at his home, 500 West End Avenue. His age was 76.

Dr. Goldstein became an associate of the late Dr. Stephen S. Wise in 1907, when the Free Synagogue was founded, and organized its Social Service Department. He devoted his life to social service and was an authority and early worker in the field of marriage counseling.

From 1905 to 1907, Dr. Goldstein served as assistant superintendent at Mount Sinai Hospital. It was from this post that he was called to the synagogue. In 1922, he assisted Dr. Wise in the founding of the Jewish Institute of Religion, now merged with the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, and had served since then as professor of social service.

Under Dr. Goldstein's direction, the Social Service Department of the synagogue became a laboratory for the community in the social service field. It helped the tubercular to become self-sufficient, placed homeless children in childless homes and readjusted patients discharged from mental hospitals.

Headed Family Study Groups

Dr. Goldstein, with Prof. Ernest W. Burgess of the University of Chicago and Dr. Abraham Stone of this city, were among the early leaders in the marriage-counseling field. Dr. Goldstein served as chairman of the Jewish Institute on Marriage and the Family, was chairman of the New York State Conference on Marriage and the Family and president of the National Conference on Family Relations.

He was the author of "The Meaning of Marriage and the Foundations of the Family" and "Marriage and Family Counseling." A history of the Social Service Department of the Free Synagogue, entitled "The Synagogue and Social Welfare," is scheduled for publication on Wednesday.

He was a member of the board of directors of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, a member of the planning committees of the White House Conference on Children in a Democracy and of the White House Conference on Aging. He was actively interested in the labor movement and the cause of woman's suffrage and civil liberties.

Dr. Goldstein was chairman of the executive committee of the Joint Committee on Unemployment, 1930-34, and a member of the executive committee of the State of New York Committee on Discrimination in Employment, 1941-44.

COUNT M. KAROLYI OF HUNGARY DEAD

Ex-Premier and President,
Pro-Allies in World War I,
Urged Separate Peace

Special to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 20 — Count Michael Karolyi, one-time Premier of Hungary who advocated a separate peace with the Allies in World War I, died today in Venice, on the French Riviera. Count Karolyi, who was eighty years old, had been living in retirement since 1949.

A descendant of one of the leading aristocratic families of Hungary, he started political life as defender of the landed interests, but soon took an independent stand. In 1914 he visited France and the United States and was interned in France at the outbreak of the war.

Released through the intervention of Raymond Poincare, President of France, and Georges Clemenceau, Premier, Count Karolyi returned to Hungary and there sought to obtain a separate peace. He was called to the Premiership just before the Armistice, in 1918. Upon the proclamation of the republic Count Karolyi was made President. He fled into exile for twenty-seven years with the advent of the Communist regime of Béla Kun in 1919.

Since that time, Count Karolyi had lived in France, Great Britain or Italy, and was in London during World War I. For a brief time after the war he was Ambassador in Paris in 1947.

Four Decades in Politics

Led Social Justice Unit

He was chairman of the Commission on Social Justice of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, 1924-35; a member of the executive committee of the Commission on Social Justice and Peace of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, and chairman of the executive committee of the War Resisters League of America, 1930-40.

Dr. Goldstein was born in Marshall, Tex., on March 7, 1879. He received an A. B. degree from the University of Cincinnati in 1904, graduated from Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati the next year as a rabbi, with the degree of Bachelor of Hebrew Literature. He did graduate work in social sciences at the University of Cincinnati, the University of Chicago and Columbia University. In 1945 he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from the Jewish Institute of Religion.

Dr. Goldstein's wife, the former Susan Sugarman, died in 1937. He is survived by a daughter, Dr. Beatrice S. Konheim, Professor of Physiology and Hygiene at Hunter College; two sisters, Mrs. Herman Berg and Mrs. Harry Flaum; a brother, Morris Goldstein, and five grandchildren.

A funeral service will be conducted tomorrow at 1:30 P. M. in the Stephen Wise Free Synagogue, 30 West Sixty-eighth Street.
