The National Council on Family Relations

The National Council on Family Relations (NCFR) is the oldest multidisciplinary family science organization in the United States. NCFR is the only non partisan, non profit professional organization focused solely on family research, policy and practice. Its membership of over 3200 consists of the nation's premier family researchers, practitioners, educators and family policy professionals.

NCFR publishes two internationally acclaimed journals the Journal of Marriage and Family and Family Relations: Interdisciplinary Journal of Applied Family Studies. NCFR is highly regarded as an authority for information on a wide range of family concerns in marriage and other relationships, parenting, divorce, domestic violence, family policy, sexuality, family therapy, family sociology and demography, education, poverty, family health, gender roles, child development, adolescence, aging and human development.

NCFR also confers the nation's only certification for family life educators through its Certified Family Life Educator (CFLE) credential. Over 100 colleges and universities now offer degree programs based on NCFR's CFLE curricular requirements.

NCFR Mission Statement

To provide an educational forum for family researchers, educators, and practitioners to share in the development and dissemination of knowledge about families and family relationships, establish professional standards, and work to promote family well-being.

Objectives of the NCFR Annual Conference

- ♦ To provide a forum to disseminate family research
- ♦ To share effective and evidence based practice applications for direct family service
- ♦ To promote the CFLE credential and its educational and preventive approach to working with families
- ♦ To discuss policy implications of family research and how to inform decision makers
- ♦ To promote the professional development of its membership, through participation in NCFR governance and by offering opportunities for continuing education units (CEUs) for credentialing

Conference Theme—Family Vulnerabilities: Challenges to Safety, Security and Well-being

The 2007 conference focuses on the challenges families face as they balance the relational, social, spiritual, health related, financial, occupational and other dimensions of their daily lives. The degree to which families can live safe, secure lives is influenced by a number of factors in individual, family, and community contexts. What are the emerging issues for mass media, policymakers, and the public that challenge the safety, security and well being of families?

- ♦ Vulnerabilities are national and international concerns as families face multiple challenges in providing safe and secure homes and finding sufficient livelihoods in an uncertain world.
- ♦ Safety is at the forefront in response to both external forces natural disasters, terrorist acts, crime, and war and also internal dynamics including stressors, crises, relationship dissolution, domestic violence, financial concerns, health issues, and lifespan caregiving
- ♦ Security is often described as social, financial, employment or Homeland. Security speaks to the critical role that families play as part of society's safety net caring for each other, providing social and material support, and creating a home where individuals are loved, nurtured, protected and encouraged.

Public Policy Workshop

The Pennsylvania and Ohio Success Stories

Tuesday, November 6, 2007, 9:00 am - 1:00 pm
Duquesne Room, Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel

Panel:

Marc Cherna, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania,
Department of Human Services

James McCafferty, Cuyahoga County, Ohio,
Department of Children and Family Services

Sherry L. Peters, State of Pennsylvania Bureau of Children's Behavioral Health Services, Division of Policy,
Planning and Program Development

David Schwille, Venango County, Pennsylvania Children and Youth Service

Moderator: Philip Gordon, Indiana University of Pennsylvania

In many areas of the United States, the myriad of county human services for financial assistance, mental health and medical services, foster care, child welfare, substance abuse, domestic violence, etc. are administered by different departments in governmental or other agencies. These services often specify varying eligibility requirements and require several application procedures. In such an environment, families already experiencing extraordinary stressors must negotiate a fragmented bureaucratic process.

Pennsylvania's Allegheny and Venango counties and Ohio's Cuyahoga county have developed an "integrated human services" model that delivers programs and services in a seamless way, allowing families and children to have one access point and a "one stop shop" experience. Join us for an exciting workshop led by a group of state and county officials who are all experienced in implementing this model.

Specific questions to be answered:

- ✦ How have these counties put the integrated services model into operation?
- ✦ Are there barriers due to conflicting policy, legislative and stake holder mandates? How do successful programs manage human resources, "turf" issues and multi agency "silos?" What is involved in integrating computer information systems?
- ✦ Then what are the outcomes? Does it work? Has the integrated services model proven beneficial for promoting family and child well being? Has it been shown to be a more effective and efficient use of public funds?

Additional registration required. Fees: $55 NCFR Member; $60 Non-NCFR member; $40 Student. Fee includes beverages and handouts. If you have not pre-registered, please sign up with the Registration Cashier at the Conference Registration Counter.

Theory Construction and Research Methodology Workshop

Tuesday, November 6, 2007, begins at 3:00 pm
Wednesday, November 7, 2007, begins at 8:00 am
Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel

You are invited to participate in the 36th Annual Theory Construction and Research Methodology Workshop (TCRM).

TCRM's mission is to facilitate the creation and refinement of theory and methods relative to the study of families. The TCRM Workshop strives to create an environment of discovery, intellectual challenge, and debate for authors and colleagues who have "works in progress" that could benefit from the collective wisdom and critique of informed scholars.

TCRM sessions consist of informed discussions of accepted papers that are read in advance of the meeting rather than formal presentations of papers themselves.

(TCRM Sessions for Wednesday are integrated into the NCFR Program. See sessions 101, 102, 110, 111, 119, 120, 133.)

Building, Strengthening and Measuring Communication Through the Powerful Tools of the Internet, Donna Davis

In the fast-paced world we live in, keeping up with the latest technology and the powerful potential of the internet has become almost a necessity. Yet, many organizations are still missing out on that potential. This session will help you understand how to choose basic design elements and content for a website; utilize exciting new tools to improve communication with your constituents and drive traffic to the site; and how to analyze traffic data for maximum results.

Collaborating with Other Organizations for an Extraordinary Conference, Madge Alberts

Planning conferences is a significant undertaking for any organization, and the planning process can "make or break" the success of the event. In this session, Madge will share some strategies that the Minnesota Council on Family Relations has learned over the years about how to plan successful conferences, including partnering successfully with other organizations. She will also share some tools they have developed to help guide the planning process.

World of Careers and Business Opportunities for Entrepreneurial Family Life Professionals, Maxine Hammonds-Smith

As Family Professionals, many of us have not looked beyond the academy for career opportunities, for ourselves, for those we mentor, or for our students. This presentation will address ways in which we can put family research into practice and train the next generation of family professionals to be successful entrepreneurs.

Teaching Family Policy in College Classrooms: Why It's Important and How to Do it Better,

Karen Bogenschneider, Elaine Anderson, Denise Skinner, Steven Wisensale

Bogenschneider

Anderson

Skinner

Wisensale

Teaching family policy on college campuses serves several important functions for the academy, students, families and society. Yet family policy has proven a difficult course to teach.

This session will identify the challenges that family policy instructors face and for each challenge, suggest course content and teaching techniques. This session aims to begin a dialogue about the precepts and philosophies from which good courses and high teaching evaluations are made. Participants will hear about syllabi, classroom activities, daily lesson plans, instructor insights and assignments designed to inspire in students a life long passion for influencing family policies in their community, state and nation.

The session will be taught by NCFR Fellow Karen Bogenschneider, Rothermel Bascom Professor of Human Ecology at the University of Wisconsin Madison and Family Policy Specialist in University Extension. Several experienced family policy instructors from across the country will also participate including Elaine Anderson, University of Maryland; Denise Skinner, University of Wisconsin Stout; and Steven Wisensale, University of Connecticut.

Opening Plenary Session

Vulnerability in the Changing American Family,

Graham B. Spanier, Ph.D.

The changing demographics of American families will continue to challenge the quality, stability and dynamics of the next generation. Divorce rates are stabilizing. Couples are older when they marry. The numbers of single parent households, dual earner families and cohabitating couples are increasing. These familiar but compelling data have led to contradictory, controversial and sometimes apocalyptic predictions about the future of the family. Dr. Spanier will help us identify the forces that threaten family well being, explore remedial actions, discover patterns of resiliency, and promote creative thinking in programs and policies.

Graham Spanier is President of Penn State University, a past president of NCFR, a family sociologist, demographer, and a marriage and family therapist. More than 100 scholarly publications, including 10 books; founding editor, Journal of Family Issues.

Session Objectives:

- ❖ To understand the latest trends and their effect on the contemporary American family.
- ❖ To identify the challenges that create vulnerabilities for today's families.
- ❖ To explore the prospects for the future of the American family.

Session #122 Grand Ballroom 3 Update for Researchers and Practitioners

Intimate Terrorism and Other Types of Domestic Violence, Michael P. Johnson

Discussant: Anne Menard

Much of the domestic violence literature continues to treat violence between intimate partners as if it were a unitary phenomenon, in spite of clear evidence that it is useful, if not necessary, to distinguish among types of perpetrators and types of violence. Michael Johnson, Associate Professor Emeritus of Sociology, Women's Studies, and African and African American Studies at Penn State University, an internationally known expert in domestic violence, will present data from a number of quite different data sets that indicate that the four major types of intimate partner violence (intimate terrorism, violent resistance, situational couple violence, and mutual violent control) involve different patterns of development, different risk factors, and different effects on the victim.

The implications for research and theory development are huge. Distinctions among types of intimate partner violence are already having an impact in the legal system (in both family court and criminal court), among battered women's advocates, and in the development of the marriage education programs sponsored by the Bush administration. We need a major effort to produce research to guide these applications of family theory that are affecting thousands of couples and their children every year.

Anne Menard, Director of the National Resource Center on Domestic Violence will be the discussant. She will bring a broad practitioner's perspective to the session. She is the major domestic violence consultant for government programs and has had a tremendous amount of experience in addressing dv issues in a wide variety of settings. She is well spoken, and although she is certainly an admirer of my work, she is also painfully aware of some of the problems created by attempts to differentiate among types of domestic violence.

Conference Director Cindy Winter Badgers Us: Wear Your Badge!

Remember to don your conference badge every day. Not only is this crucial for security reasons, it is helpful to your colleagues. We all have those awkward moments when we recognize a face, but can't recall the name. Or maybe someone is meeting you for the very first time. Glancing at each other's nametags jogs memories and encourages introductions. Happy Networking!

NCFR Launches New Journal: Journal of Family Theory and Review Invites Submissions Now

NCFR announces the organization's third scholarly journal; the Journal of Family Theory and Review. The inaugural issue is slated for publication in March 2009. The journal's editor, Dr. Robert Milardo, Professor of Family Relations at the University of Maine, invites submissions, beginning November 1, 2007, on theory and review in any area of family studies. The journal is especially interested in publishing emergent theory or work that reinterprets or integrates existing theory. Interested writers and reviewers may contact Dr. Milardo with questions at rh360@maine.edu or by phone at (207) 581-3128.

Walcheski

The session begins with a brief review of the current research, followed by presentations giving practical tools that can be promptly implemented. Panelists will address the application of research to specific areas of family life education programming. The session also includes audience participation.

Overindulgence is defined as:

- ⌘ Giving children too much of what looks good, too soon and too long
- ⌘ Giving them things or experiences not appropriate for their age, interests or talents
- ⌘ Giving things to children that meet the adult's need, not the child's need
- ⌘ Giving a disproportionate amount of family resources to one or more children in a way that appears to be meeting the children's needs but does not
- ⌘ Doing or having so much of something that it does active harm to or at least stagnates a child and deprives the child of achieving his or her full potential

Participants will receive materials, prepared by the panelists, for enhancing family life education around the session's topic, including practical application of concepts and a list of resources for implementation.

Amato

Fragile Families, Kathryn Edin, Ph.D. and Sara McLanahan, Ph.D.

Moderator: Paul Amato, Ph.D.

This session will focus on what we can learn from the Fragile Families and Child Wellbeing Study, which has followed a cohort of about 5000 children (including 3,700 with unmarried parents) for five years. The study was designed to understand several aspects of fragile families: the relationships between mothers and fathers, the development of these children, and the role of labor markets and government policies in affecting the wellbeing of children and parents.

Kathryn Edin is Professor of Sociology and a Research Associate at the Population Studies Center at the University of Pennsylvania. Her research focuses on policy relevant issues including urban poverty, social welfare, public housing, child support and non marital childbearing. Dr. Edin has conducted extensive ethnographic research with fragile families and single mothers. Sara McLanahan is a Professor of Sociology and Social Policy, and the Director of the Center for Research and Child Wellbeing, at Princeton University. Dr. McLanahan helped to design the Fragile Families and Child Wellbeing Study. Paul Amato, Professor of Sociology at Penn State University, will moderate the panel.

Bridges Out of Poverty: Strategies for Professionals and Communities, Jodi Pfarr

In this workshop, participants will create a mental model of poverty, review poverty research, examine a theory of change and analyze poverty through the prism of the hidden rules of class, resources, family structure and language. Participants will receive specific strategies for improving outcomes for people living in poverty, but the workshop focus is to provide a broad overview of concepts.

Presenter Jodi Pfarr is a speaker and consultant for Aha Process, Inc. M.Div.; Chaplain. She is a consultant for Catholic Charities on programs and staff development. As a consultant with the Salvation Army, she creates holistic programs for low income families in need of shelter to stabilize their lives. She is a certified critical incident debriefer to police departments and other community social services.

Research Update for Researchers

Is the Revolution Over? Mothers' Time Allocation to Work and Family, Suzanne M. Bianchi, Ph.D.

Mothers' labor force participation increased dramatically in the latter half of the 20th century. Despite their increased time outside the home, mothers' investments in childrearing appear to be as high or higher than ever before. Fathers also seem to be investing more time in the home, partly in response to the demands created by their wives' employment.

Suzanne Bianchi, Professor and Chair of the Sociology Department at the University of Maryland, will document these changes and discuss how it has been possible for maternal time with children to remain high when their allocation of time in the marketplace was also increasing.

Bianchi will engage the question that is receiving increased attention: given mothers' continued investments in childrearing, are we seeing a decline in women's involvement in market work? Is the trend toward greater gender equality in the labor market ending? Among younger cohorts, is there a retrenchment into the home? or are we misinterpreting the recent slowdown, even reversal, in women's employment?

Marie Peters Award Address

Drawing on the Theoretical and Research Scholarship Legacy of Dr. Marie F. Peters: Examining Everyday Life Experiences of African American Families From a Strengths-based Perspective, Velma McBride Murry, 2007 Marie Peters Award Winner

Guided by Peters and Massey's MEES Model, this presentation highlights those protective processes in African American families that reduce the potential negative effects of stressful life events on family relationships, health functioning and youth adjustment. The protective capacities of adaptive racial socialization and racial identity for youth are also illustrated.

Velma McBride Murry is Professor of Child and Family Development and Co-director of the Center for Family Research, University of Georgia. She has served on the NIH Risk Prevention and Health Behavior Integrated Grant Review Panel and is a co-founder of the Study Group on Race, Ethnicity and Culture. Her work focuses on understanding the significance of context in studies of African-American families and youth.

Family Caregiving: Planning a New Agenda for Research and Practice, Steven Zarit, Ph.D.

Along with the growing understanding of the bio medical aspects of Alzheimer's Disease, there has been increased research on the dilemmas faced by family caregivers and on effective strategies for relieving stress and burden. In the past, caregiver interventions were often guided by anecdotal evidence, but a growing body of evidence has identified several promising strategies and approaches. The most promising approaches to lowering caregiver stress will be discussed.

Steven Zarit is Director, Gerontology Center, Professor and Head of the Human Development and Family Studies Department, Penn State University; and Adjunct Professor, Gerontology Institute, University College of Health Science, Jönköping, Sweden

Living on Life's Byways - Rural Mothers Speak

This new play is a dramatization of the lived experiences of rural, low income mothers and their families following the 1996 passage of the Federal Welfare Reform Act. The three act drama culminates with audience participation in a moderated public policy deliberative forum.

Bonnie Braun, Ph.D., Associate Professor and Extension Family Policy Specialist, Department of Family Studies, University of Maryland is the playwright. Dr. Braun is a member of the 17 state research team who conducted a series of 3 interviews of 413 mothers. Quantitative and qualitative analyses by members of the research team informed the play. The play, in the tradition of social theatre, is intended as a teaching tool to increase awareness and understanding of the state of well being of rural, low income families and of options for public policy at local, state and/or national levels.

Little Rock Hosts NCFR in 2008— Save the Dates

Mark your calendars now for November 4 – 8, 2008 to attend the 70th annual conference in Little Rock, Arkansas! Stay tuned to NCFR Report magazine and the Zippy News for the latest information. The 2008 Program Chair is Anisa Zvonkovic of Texas Tech University.

The Lost Faculties

Playing at the Dance sponsored by Students/New Professionals

A Benefit Performance for the Margaret and Harold Feldman Award in Public Policy

Voluntary tax deductible contributions accepted at the door.

Everyone is welcome! Let's dance!

Who are the Lost Faculties?

Probably Pennsylvania's most erudite rock band, that's who! In their own words, they "play songs that most respectable, contemporary bands
would never attempt."
Turned off by the current musical scene (which has been in a state of decline for over three decades), their mission is to revive traditional American music, that is, pre Beatles rock, surf, and blues. Think Bo Diddley, Dick Dale, Buddy Holly, Del Shannon, Muddy Waters, and, of course Elvis. And, for those nostalgic about the Cold War, one of the high points of their set is a medley of James Bond songs.

The members of the band are (clockwise in photo, beginning at the tree): Sharon Felson (lead vocals), Sam Richards (drums, backup vocals), NCFR member Paul Amato (lead guitar, keyboard), Wayne Osgood (rhythm guitar, lead vocals), and Rich Felson (bass, harmonica, backup vocals).

Paul, Rich, Sam, and Wayne are Sociology faculty at Penn State University. Sharon decided to do something useful with her life and is a social worker. They perform frequently at university events, local clubs and private parties in the State College area. In 2004, they played at the annual meeting of the American Sociological Association (ASA) in Philadelphia. In 2005, ASA banned live bands from their conferences. (A coincidence: correlation does not = causation.) Once you hear their unusual repertoire, you will understand that they truly have lost their faculties.

2007 Proposal Reviewers

The strength of the NCFR Annual Conference is the Concurrent Sessions sponsored by Sections. Colleagues submit proposals they would like to present at the conference. These are blind reviewed by three peer reviewers from the Section to which the proposal was submitted. The reviewers' role is key to ensuring that conference presentations are of the highest quality for a rich, rewarding, and stimulating conference experience for both research and practitioner proposals. Reviewers donated many hours to evaluate the proposals. The following reviewed 556 proposals in 2007:

Townhall Meeting: NCFR Institutional Identity Project

Facilitator: Dwight Jewson, Strategic Frameworking, Inc.

NCFR is in the midst of an Institutional Identity Project. In this morning's Townhall Meeting questions such as "How does NCFR show up in the world?" and "What is our clarion call - the something bigger we hope to achieve?" These questions get to the core of the purpose of NCFR and we'd like to know how you answer them.

Dwight Jewson, Founder and President of Strategic Frameworking, Inc., of Vashon, Washington is the leader of the NCFR Institutional Identity Project. He's the son of former NCFR Executive Director, Ruth Jewson, and an expert in helping organizations clarify their identity.

President: Pamela Monroe, 2005-2007 NCFR President

General Conference Information

Welcome to the 69th NCFR Annual Conference. The theme: Family Vulnerabilities: Challenges to Safety, Security and Well-being is the focus of a stimulating and relevant program.

This year's offerings of plenaries, special sessions, research and practitioner updates are outstanding. NCFR Sections have planned stimulating special topic workshops, symposia and posters covering a wide range of topics in family sciences.

In addition to over 350 presentations, you can network with colleagues, meet NCFR Board members and Section Chairs. Have lunch with several of NCFR's Fellows at a "Lunchin' With the Legends" Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Please leave your cell phone number or Hilton number with family and workplaces. Locating you in an emergency can be difficult.

Accommodations for Special Needs

To insure that all may fully participate in the conference, please ask someone at the conference registration desk to contact Cindy Winter, if you have special needs.

If You Have Questions Or Need Help...

Stop at the NCFR Conference Registration desk in the Ballroom Foyer on the 2nd floor during registration hours and staff will gladly assist you. Visit the NCFR Booth in the Exhibits on Thursday and Friday. Feel free to ask questions of the Board, committee and Elections Council members who are wearing colored ribbons on their name badges.

Note: You must wear your name badge at all times. Badges are checked at the door before you can enter the room. Those not registered may not be admitted to sessions.

Your Conference Registration Fee covers admission to the following events: ♦ Plenaries, symposia/workshops, papers, public policy seminars, round tables, posters ♦ Special sessions, section and focus group business meetings ♦ All receptions that are not for special invitation only ♦ Exhibits ♦ Newcomers' Reception for first and second time attendees only

Events Requiring Additional Fees and/or Registration:

♦ Pre conference workshops on Tuesday, November 6 and Wednesday, November 7 ♦ Association of Councils Leadership Workshop/Lunch, Wednesday, November 7 ♦ Lunchin' With the Legends Round Tables Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

Refund Policy:

REFUND REQUESTS MUST BE IN WRITING AND POST-MARKED BY NOVEMBER 1, 2007. NO REFUNDS WILL BE GIVEN AFTER NOVEMBER 1 EXCEPT FOR A MEDICAL EMERGENCY. Registration fee refunds are subject to a 35% administrative fee. No refunds for special events unless the event is cancelled. Refund checks will be mailed approximately 3 weeks after the Conference.

Lenses on Family

70th Annual Conference

Wednesday, November 4 – Saturday, November 7, 2008

Pre-conference Workshops: Tuesday, November 3

Peabody Hotel - Little Rock, Arkansas (home of the “Peabody Ducks”)

Little Rock is the home of the Clinton Presidential Library, Heifer Foundation Village, River Market District, Central High School Museum about the Little Rock 8 Students

Program Chair: Anisa Zvonkovic, Ph.D., Texas Tech University

Information about the 2008 Call for Proposals will be available on NCFR's website by November 15, 2007. All submissions will be submitted electronically. See <http://www.ncfr.org/conf/current/call.asp>

Topics: Service Learning, How to Judge Scientific Research When Things are Factual and When They are not, Transnational Families

The lenses through which we view family affect what is seen and unseen, as well as how our research findings are understood. The theme of this year's conference encompasses how families are defined, which family processes are presumed to be adaptive, and how our research findings are interpreted in the public arena.

Putting on diverse lenses (cross culturally, methodologically, disciplinarily, pedagogically, ideologically, and in other ways) allows us to expand our vision of possibilities for family relationships.

- Cross cultural work shows varieties of family experiences; for example, transnational families (in which family members live in different countries) illuminate how family is defined and maintained in the face of geographic, political, and financial barriers.
- Complementary and contrasting methodological approaches on similar content areas are encouraged in order to survey the field from multiple vantage points.
- Family studies has always been interdisciplinary, but scholarship from disciplines not ordinarily associated with family studies provides new focus on family life, in particular by demonstrating how family members work, play, and communicate with one another.

- Pedagogy is enhanced by putting on different lenses, which can mean teaching from an experiential viewpoint, incorporating service learning, and other innovations. Innovative pedagogical techniques push students and faculty to expand their understandings of family relationships.
- In the public arena, the concept of family is often referred to in order to put a lens on issues that are commonly understood, but what types of families are considered and how does this lens obscure what is seen?

Plus

- ♦ Research Updates for Researchers
- ♦ Research Updates for Practitioners
- ♦ Practitioner Updates for Practitioners
- ♦ Lunchin' With the Legends
- ♦ Unveiling the Institutional Identity Plan
- ♦ Tours of the Clinton Library
- ♦ Great Networking
- ♦ And much more!

Join the National Council on Family Relations Today!

The National Council on Family Relations invites you to be a part of our association. We now have members in 33 countries, providing more opportunities than ever to network with other family professionals. NCFR is committed to increasing diversity in our publications, membership and activities.

Member Benefits

- ✧ Journal of Marriage and Family is the leading scholarly research journal in the family field. It features original research and theory, research interpretation, critical discussion concerning all aspects of marriage and families and book reviews.
- ✧ Family Relations: Interdisciplinary Journal of Applied Family Studies is an applied scholarly journal with a family practitioner focus. Emphasis is on relationships across the life cycle with implications FOR intervention, education, and public policy.
- ✧ All journal volumes are available online full text offering 68 years in the development about families and family relationships.
- ✧ Report, the quarterly member-news magazine of the National Council on Family Relations, strives to provide timely, useful information to help members succeed in their roles as researchers, educators, and practitioners. Articles address family field issues, programs and trends, including association news.
- ✧ The "Members Only" section of our website
- ✧ Network with other professionals in the family field and exchange information and ideas through our listservs and online membership directory.
- ✧ Advance your professional development by attending the excellent sessions at NCFR's annual conference.
- ✧ Become a CFLE

PLUS...NEW JOURNAL COMING in 2009 - Journal of Family Theory and Review

The journal is especially interested in publishing emergent theory or work that reinterprets or integrates existing theory.

JOURNAL OF COMPARATIVE FAMILY STUDIES

The leading journal exclusively specializing in cross-cultural family studies.

The Journal was established in 1970 to publish high quality research in cross cultural family studies. It promotes a better understanding of inter-ethnic family interaction that is essential for all multicultural societies.

It draws articles from social science researchers around the world. It contains invaluable material for Sociologists, Anthropologists, Family Counselors, and Social Psychologists.

Published four times a year including special issues on a selected theme.
